

LANFORD EVIDENCE NOT CONVINCING, SAYS LEHON

Asserts Evidence Against Frank Is Same as Presented at Trial

Pan S. Lehon, Burns' lieutenant in the investigation of the Mary Phagan murder case, declares that the character of evidence against Frank, held by Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, is "not satisfactory."

When Burns, before he left the city Saturday afternoon, offered a $1,000 reward for any one who would furnish him with satisfactory evidence, Lehon stated that he could furnish Burns with all of the evidence he wanted, and probably more.

Lehon, in the absence of his chief, stated police headquarters Sunday afternoon, and spent an hour in conference with the head of the city detective department.

When the subject was broached, according to Mr. Lehon, Chief Lanford stated that he referred the evidence now in the possession of the solicitor, which was used at the Frank trial.

He said that he had additional evidence, but would not furnish it, which he would furnish Mr. Burns.

"The chief told me the nature of that evidence, however," Mr. Lehon added, "and I found it to be the same stuff we have already investigated, and we find that it is not satisfactory."

Chief Lanford was the only person to reply to Mr. Burns' statement, and we are still looking for satisfactory evidence, he said.

Mr. Lehon declared that his conference with the chief of the city detective was entirely friendly and pleasant. "The chief assured me," said Mr. Lehon, "that he would be glad to cooperate with us in our efforts to get at the truth."

He said that he was still open to conviction, and that if he could be shown that he had been wrong in any of the witnesses or by his men, that he would be the last person on earth to object to the execution of an innocent man.

Lehon will not return to the city during the day Monday, Lehon declared, and he will not say when the detective is to be expected.

Lehon, when told of the statement of the Burns agent, said he had divided none of the character of the case to him to have against Frank, except by a hypothetical statement.

"While I am willing to give this evidence to Burns himself," said the chief, "I intend to divert it to any of his agents."

Attorneys for Frank are still busy preparing the extraordinary motion for a new trial which will be filed on next Wednesday into shape for presentation.

Frank, who still declares that he is innocent of ultimate vindication, is soon to be charged by the arrival from Brooklyn of his mother, Mrs. Irie Frank.

Mrs. Frank was present at the trial and in the court room with her son practically every day. Soon after the trial she returned to her home. She is expected here in the next twenty-four hours.

RECORD CROWD ATTENDS MASONIC RITUAL SUNDAY

Hundreds Were Unable to Get Inside Auditorium of the Masonic Temple

Five hundred people were turned away from Masonic temple, Sunday afternoon, when the Scottish Rite auditorium had been filled to the doors with attendants at the ceremony of "Rebelling the Lights."

The attendance was the largest gathering that has witnessed any Masonic ritual in Atlanta.

The ceremony was the coronation of that held last Thursday evening, when the lights were extinguished in accordance with the Knights Rose Croix ritual for Maundy Thursday.

As the music accompanying that ceremony was so joyous, the Scottish Rite volunteers, choir, one of the best musical organizations in the city, again furnished the music, and choral, and Paul Hubbard sat again at the organ.

These two ceremonies, on Maundy Thursday and Easter Sunday, are obligatory upon all Knights Rose Croix, or members of the eighteenth degree Scottish Rite.

At Maundy Thursday, the ceremony was conducted by White Eagle Chapter No. 1, the following being the participants: Sunday afternoon: Vice master, C. E. Robertson; senior warden, John C. H. Butler; junior warden, W. H. H. Butler; master, W. H. H. Butler; and in compensation for the author's services, the warden, Douglas H. Butler, captain of the guard, J. L. L. Butler.

Runaway Girls From Macon Located Here

Mother Takes One of Them Home and Father Will Come for the Other

Rosalie Cherry, aged sixteen years, and Maggie Fleming, aged thirteen years, two little Macon girls who ran away from home to go on the stage, were arrested Sunday by city detectives and lodged with the matron at police headquarters.

The mother of the younger girl, Mrs. C. Fleming, came up from Macon Sunday afternoon, seeking to inflict physical punishment on the older girl whom she charges with luring her daughter from home.

Rosalie Cherry, who is being held pending the arrival of her father, J. S. Cherry, 455 O. Central, who claims that the younger girl, to whom she had confided her plan for running away to Atlanta and joining a musical comedy company, insisted on accompanying her.

"I begged her not to come with me," said the Cherry girl, after Mrs. Fleming, according to the police, had attempted to strike her, "and thought I had persuaded her to stay at home when she told me that I had planned to take."

The two girls were arrested Sunday morning at the Childs' hotel by Detectives Sturdivant and Chevington, who had been asked to look out for the two runaways.

According to the officers, the girls forged the name of Mrs. Fleming to an order for $5 on a grocer in Macon and added the money to that they had already saved for tickets to Atlanta.

The Cherry girl declares her companion received the $5 and spent it and that she didn't share it at all.

Mrs. Fleming, according to the police, has threatened to prosecute the Cherry girl for a forged check, and the latter answers that if Mrs. Fleming starts a prosecution she will draw a warrant charging assault and battery as the result of the incident in the matron's ward.

The Cherry girl declares she ran away from home once before and spent several weeks with a show company which toured Georgia.

When she died, surrounded by all the other members of her family, Charles Ryan, vice president of the Fourth National bank, A. J. Ryan, and Robert A. Ryan, all of Atlanta, have made the old home their home all their lives.

The other daughter is Miss Helen C. Kuhlert, of Atlanta. The four grandchildren are Henry, Isabella, Lucile Kuhlert and Edith Ryan, daughter of the late Edith A. Ryan.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning in the Immaculate Conception church, where Mrs. Ryan was a member almost from its dedication. Interment will be in the cemetery.

CLUB WOMEN PLEDGE TO HELP GRADY HOSPITAL

At Meeting of City Federation of Clubs, 86 Organizations Start Campaign

At an enthusiastic meeting of the club women of the city Monday at noon, the city Federation of Clubs pledged itself to the $750,000 Grady hospital movement, not only as an organization, but through individual efforts.

This means that 86 organizations and 4,000 and more club women will have an active campaign for the passage of the Grady bonds, and, as the club women of the city aided largely by their efforts in securing the last bond, they are interested in the Grady hospital fund that the bond issue is more of a certainty now than it has been before.

The needs of Grady hospital were presented to the club women by Bishop C. K. Nelson, Dr. W. B. Sumner, Dr. C. W. Ekin, Ivan Allen and Colonel R. J. Lowry. In addition, Mrs. E. L. Conally, Mrs. W. H. Wages and several other women spoke, urging the necessity for securing adequate hospital equipment and stressing the menace that exists when the hospital facilities are so overcrowded and unsanitary as they now are at Grady.

After the earnest addresses the women agreed to do all in their power to make Atlanta a medical and hospital center, both for the sake of those in need of Grady services and as a matter of civic pride.

Within a few days they will receive Greater Grady hospital button and prospectuses, and the campaign will be started in earnest. In the meantime they are marshaling their arguments, and "we mean to win this battle," they said Monday, as they left the Women's club room building, where the meeting was held.

TINKER PUT ON TRIAL ON KIDNAPING CHARGE

Two Women Create Sensation at Hearing by Each Claiming Baby

OPPELOUSAS, La., April 12.—Hundred of citizens from surrounding country were here today to witness the opening of the trial of W. W. Walker, the tinkerman, charged with the capital offense under the laws of Louisiana of kidnapping Robert Dunbar, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Dunbar, of this city.

They expected to witness the inauguration of a legal battle that has for its objective the unravelling of a psychological problem with but few parallels, involving the ability of a mother to establish the identity of her own son. Interest in the opening of the trial was heightened by the arrival early today from her country home in North Carolina of Julia Anderson, who asserts that the boy taken from the tinker by legal process and claimed by Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar as their son, is her illegitimate child and that his father is a brother of the defendant.

Julia Anderson will be one of the principal witnesses for the defense, which will attempt to prove that the boy now under the care of the Dunbar home is not Robert Dunbar but Bruce Anderson.

A handsome dark-eyed lad, owned as a son by two men, who was found in possession of Walker eight months after Robert Dunbar disappeared from a Sunday school picnic on the banks of Lake Swag, near here, August 23, 1913, and Walker were centers of interest today.

MAP INTRODUCE MEASURE TO HELP AGED VETERANS

Many Getting Admission to Home Here Have Not Transportation Money

A bill providing for the state to pay for the transportation of indigent Confederate veterans, from their homes to the Soldiers' home in Atlanta, may be introduced at the forthcoming assembly of the general assembly.

Captain W. H. (Tip) Harrison, secretary to the board of trustees of the home, stated Monday morning that many of the old veterans who sought admission to the home were too poor to pay the fare to get to the home.

At an instance of this kind came to Captain Harrison's attention Monday morning in the application for admission to the home by John Campbell, a seventy-five-year-old and bedridden veteran of the Civil war, who had been taken to Atlanta for himself and attendant.

Captain Harrison had to advise him that there was no appropriation for this purpose and that his friends would have to see that he got to the home.

Many of the old veterans are indigent and infirm," said Captain Harrison. "There are not forty-one of them in the hospital at the home."

(By Associated Press.) Senator Lewis' companion bill as explained by himself would create three subcommittees of seven members each, one branch to have jurisdiction over commerce and transportation, railways and steamships to have the jurisdiction over banking and finance, the third over labor and interstate industries and interrelationships of manufactured merchandise.

Senator Lewis also would abolish the new federal reserve bank board, another section creating of branch local banks with manufacturers would abolish the Federal Reserve board and absorb much of the work of the department of commerce and labor.

COMPROLLER WILL USE REGIONAL BANK FIGURES

Statistics That Helped Land Bank Will Be Special Feature of His Report

The city comptroller's office is preparing to put into the comptroller's annual report of the financial operations of the city of Atlanta for 1913, a special feature consisting of the figures submitted to the federal reserve bank organization committee to show Atlanta's claims for a regional bank.

For several years the comptroller, in addition to the regular financial statement of the city, has selected some outside statistics with reference to Atlanta's commercial and business growth. The figures are an addendum or special feature of his report.

This year the regional bank figures are especially timely, and show Atlanta's commercial and financial importance probably better than any other single compilation ever made.

But $10.00 For Such Hats!

Surprising, to say the least. But there is a why and a wherefore. Successful Millinery is both a matter of business and of art.

As merchants, we cannot lose sight of either phase of it.

The business end of millinery requires us to watch costs—it concerns the elements, the flowers, the ribbons, the feathers, the shapes. It determines prices.

The artistic end concerns the use of these elements, it determines the style and charm of the hat. Therein lies

The Triumph of These $10.00 Hats

It is because our own milliners and Estelle Mershon, of 20 E. 46 St., are in closest touch with the authoritative styles and that they have the knack of turning the brim to just the proper curve, of placing a flower just so, of blending one color with another, that these hats at $10.00 are indeed works of art.

You should see them! There are hats for every occasion; tailored hats as smart as can be; flowered hats that breathe the beauty of spring; feather and ribbon trimmed hats that are chic and Frenchy; flat crowned hats; pokes with sauciest of upturned brims; hats that fit the head closely and smartly—big cases filled with $10 hats that you will say look the part of a greater price.

In all of the striking of the clock, one hour stands out first when a man meets his family at the evening meal.

WHITE RABBIT VISITS CHILDREN ON EASTER MONDAY

A Story of the Easter Tide

In Germany a beautiful legend is told of the little boys and girls. The story goes that long, long ago, when the animals were created, a bitter cry came from them because they could not speak. Later, it was decided that if an animal was good and kind in its humble way the reward would be that he would be able to see the holy angels as they walk the earth.

So, early on the first Easter morning, the holy angels of the forest were gathered together on a hillside overlooking Jerusalem and were very sad, knowing that a great sorrow had come to the world. Suddenly a shining angel appeared and pointed with a sheet of lilacs toward Jerusalem and told them that the dear Lord was risen! So, then it became necessary to choose one of their number to carry the glad tidings throughout the world. First, the lion as king of beasts was chosen to carry the message. But it was decided that the lion's voice was too loud and would frighten the animal people. Then someone suggested that Robin's Redbreast should go. But the answer came that an arrow might find Robin as he winged his scarlet way across his country. Then the choice fell on the rabbit. "For surely," said the holy folk, "write rabbit is too good and kind in all the world would have the heart to harm him." So, with lean and bounds white rabbit started on his way, and every Easter morning he arrives at the homes of his little friends among the children, bearing gifts of gaily-colored Easter eggs.

Little Miss Idoline Lewman entertained at an Easter party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Lewman, on Peachtree place.

Guests assembled around a large round table, the center of which was decorated with a huge Easter rabbit holding green ribbons, the ends attached to small green baskets holding tiny chicks and bunnies, which were given as souvenirs.

Green spout candy nests filled with white candy eggs, were used as place cards.

The rooms in which games were played were artistically decorated with bowls and vases of Easter lilies and pink peach blossoms.

Little Miss Lewman wore a becoming frock of white net, lace trimmed and with wash and slippers of pink.

Fifty little folks were guests of the occasion.

Little Miss Genevieve Miller and Master David Miller entertained at a delightful party Monday afternoon at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Miller, on West Peachtree street.

A merry Easter egg hunt was the feature of the afternoon and at its close lilies were served in the dining room of the pretty home. The boys and girls of present included:

Alice Stearns, Ruth Brown, Bessie Brown, Dorothy Olsen, Robert Olsen, Sarah Orme, Dorothy McCullough, Nina Burke, Maudie Burke, Anne Harriot Shewmake, Martha Miller, James Drake, William Tye, Julia Memminger, Weston Widen, Dorothy Elyse, George Elyse, Ruth Moll, Elizabeth Moll, Caroline Bookham, Theodora Bookham, Robert Blanton, Claire Blanton, Virginia Blanton, Alice Smith, Katherine Davis, Lillian Castle, Rowena McGill, Elizabeth Goldsmith, Margaret Elder, Elizabeth Coles, Royton Coles, Irwin Evan, Joseph Baldwin, Edith Morris, Eldred Pritchett, Mary Eleanor Evans, Ruth Wesley, Louise Dent, Ellen Ramsey, Julia Patten, Nellie Owens, Nita Hawkins, Calie Orme, Sarah Wagstaff, Dorothy Haverly, Katherine Haverly.

An enjoyable event of the afternoon was the Easter egg hunt given by Miss Boyer Lekey.

The little guests assembled in Piedmont park in the rear of the Piedmont club, where the hunt took place.

The little boy and girl successful in finding the golden eggs were given two rabbits, one to represent Uncle Remus "Rabbit" and "Miss Rabbit."

After the hunt the guests went to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Loken, on Fourteenth street.

A long table was placed on the open porch, covered with an Easter cloth stencilled with bunnies and chicks.

The central decoration of the table was two dandy baskets filled with candy eggs, the handles of the baskets were lined with green ribbon, and tiny rabbits were used as place cards.

Miss Lekey wore a white lingerie frock with wide wash of blue. The little guests included:

Mary Goddard, Frances Barnett, Palmer Eadie, Annie Leigh Hobson, Helena Callaway, Jennie Hodson, Clayton Callaway, Dorothy Correll, Henrietta Phillips, Effie Daniel, Hardy Shaugher, Laurie Harrison, Hattie Schuessler, Florence Hewlett, Alice Dewar, Fontaine Weyman, Cyrus Strickler, H. "Well," said a very breathless and tired White Rabbit to a Journal reporter as he was leaving Atlanta at the close of his busy day. "I have nearly scamped my four little feet off. I have visited all the good children, and you needn't tell any one, but I even included a few bad ones in my rounds, for after all, Easter Monday only comes once a year."

a year—and I always hope that the children will have been good to see me come good little ones by this time next year."

Master Samuel Adams Dorsey entertained a number of young friends at a party and egg hunt at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cam D. Dorsey, in Anasley Park.

The guests included twenty-five children who were immediately glad to see the little guests at the home of his parents. The little guests at the home of his parents. The little guests at the home of his parents.

Easter favors were distributed among the little guests at the conclusion of the games played during the afternoon and later daily refreshments were served.

ATHENS, Ga., April 13.—The University of Georgia baseball team will play the University of Illinois here today. Manager Lord gave Fred V. Smith, third baseman turned over to Mobile by Boston, who jumped to the Buffalo Bulls, his last chance to stick in organized baseball when he wired his last night to report. Smith's case is identical with Killifer's, and Lord believes he may repeat and come back to Mobile. The Mobile manager announced the purchase today of Pitcher James Guder from New Orleans. Guder is a right-hander and last year was with Pensacola, Fla., in the Cotton States.

A CHALLENGE.

Prof. B. L. T. says looking at the cup and not at the ball in putting is based "upon common sense and psychological truth." Jerry Travers, a professional basketball player, adheres strictly to the theory of looking at the ball.

Wherefore slay B. L. T. a challenge for a three-ball match—in which he will be looking at the cup; Travers will putt looking at the ball and we will follow our set custom of looking at the ball until we are about to hit it and then suddenly yank our head up, leaving our eyes focussed on the ball between the basket and the cup. The latter system will very rarely ever take over three putts to any green when within eight or ten feet of the cup.

About the only thing strictly legal about baseball, according to the latest legislation, is the area of the home plate and the distance between the bases.

The best feature of the 1914 opening is that Hans Wagner and Nap Lajoie are still on the gunner's deck. Swinging into their eighteenth season, they are still among the leaders of the league. For these reasons, the following follows there will be three gaps that no twenty six-kilometer athletes will ever fill.

Stick that first one over and leave the hits fall where they may.
